

A North Georgia Christmas (North Georgia Days Book 3)

Welcome back to North Georgia! Brett and Sherry Warren have been happily married since summer, and are both looking forward to their first holiday together. Even as they move ahead, they will never forget the circumstances that brought them together, and both are thankful for all the good things that have happened. Emily Warren has adjusted to life in North Georgia. While she still occasionally struggles with the loss of her birth mother in a car crash this past summer, she loves living with her dad and new mom. Surprised to find that she enjoys an occasional trip with her dad, one of those trips will show her just how unpredictable (and dangerous) life on the road can be. The Evans family continues to enjoy their friendship with the Warrens, and Sergeant Tony Powell is back on the job after a September incident almost ended his life. All of the Warrens family and friends will converge on the Warren home at Christmas for the very first time. All of it is a huge change from previous years. A rare occurrence in North Georgia will add some sparkle to the holiday! In the middle of it all, faith, family, and friends continue to be the order of the day.
