Mann was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1929, principally in recognition of his popular achievement with the epic Buddenbrooks (1901), The Magic Mountain (Der Zauberberg 1924), and his numerous short stories. Contents Buddenbrooks, Verfall einer Familie Der Tod in Venedig Tonio Kroger Der kleine Herr Friedemann Tristan Konigliche Hoheit Tonio Kroger Gladius Dei; Schwere Stunde Buddenbrooks, Verfall einer Familie - In the 1840s, Lubeck is a dominating commercial town on the Baltic coast, and the Buddenbrooks are among the towns first families. Consul Jean Buddenbrook has two sons, Thomas and Christian, and one daughter, Antonia, called Tony. Even though he dearly loves them, he expects his children to sacrifice personal happiness for the sake of the company if necessary. The first to learn this is Tony, who is married off to Hamburgian businessman Bendix Grunlich. Her brothers have meanwhile learned the trade in Amsterdam and London respectively. Crushed by Tonys marriage disaster and several unlucky transactions, Jean Buddenbrook makes over the business to his eldest, Thomas. Thomas marries the dutch heiress Gerda, who is a passionate violin player. But Thomas never forgets his first love, a flower girl. After having spent time in Valparaiso, Christian returns to Lubeck, too. Thomas soon learns that his brother is much more interested in the theatre and actress Aline than in the company, which causes a rift between the brothers. Seeing that she cant heal it, their mother admonishes them to at least conceal it from the public.
