

The Torment: The Gift Trilogy: Book II

Brendan McLaren, once a priest and now an exorcist, has a secret. Angelina Landon, the young girl for whom Brendan performed an exorcism years before, works with him on a paranormal investigations team and is obsessed with discovering the reasons why he left the priesthood and now lives such a solitary and secretive life. Finding it difficult to say no to his teenaged friend, Brendan shocks her with his story of being raised in a cult from the age of ten years old. Angelina becomes consumed with his tale of alienation, abuse, and murder and convinces him that there is more to be discovered at Fellowship Farm. Believing those he loved are now lost to him, Brendan is blindsided by Angelina's claim that he left someone behind when he escaped from the compound eight years prior. First introduced in The Gift, Brendan McLaren is a tortured soul, believing the tragedies in his life were somehow caused by his actions. He fights a dark addiction, one he is too ashamed to talk about, threatening his chance at happiness with the woman he loves. The second in The Gift Trilogy, familiar characters return to help Brendan escape the shadows of guilt, shame, and addiction to end his torment.
