

Goodenough (A Tale of the Kingless Lands)

Nore Goodenough is a maid in Barrendack manor, but she has a secret: dragon blood runs in her veins. She is also the last of the Goodenoughs, who once ruled one of the twelve baronies in the Kingless Lands. Milo Barrendack is not a Barrendack by blood--his mother had an affair with an unknown man. He is a magician and recognizes the magic within Nore immediately. Milo takes Nore on as an apprentice, even though she is too old and a woman. He brings her back to his home which sits on the edge of Goodenough land, now ruled by the wicked Gault (who is planning war against Milos benefactor, Lord Rockbell). As Nore's magic (and her love for Milo) blossoms she longs to take control of her lost destiny and take back her family's lost land, but when her chance finally comes will love and duty prevent her from fighting for her home? This is a 37,000 word novella. It falls into the category of fantasy and romance. It contains sex and violence.
