

A Month of Mornings Vol 3 (A Month of Mornings Series)

From the Forward : A month of mornings began as it should, as an experiment. Life is an experiment. We make plans. We change them. The plans change us. Thus we evolve. And live. * Thus I began the forward for my first two volumes of A Month of Mornings. I knew the writing of a morning observation of myself, would gain me an awareness beyond the obvious, the weather, aches and pains or feeling refreshed, worries and plans and hopes, maybe even some dreams. I didnt know what else might come of this, but Im getting an idea. As most people probably know that follow this series, I also do a later-in-the-day series, Everyday Gratitude.

That series is as much an exercise as it is an expression. With a title that includes the word gratitude and that began on Thanksgiving ;- ) it was fairly easy to feel the intent of that series from the beginning.

In the morning poem series, though, other than knowing that gaining awareness, or rather becoming aware of what I was aware of each morning as I work and began the day, I wasnt sure what else would come of this. What I seem to be getting glimmers of, as I progress from being more fully aware of what I seem to be aware of, on a consistent basis each morning, not counting surprises ;- ) are my reactions to the new kind of weather Im experiencing here in Vermont (vs Texas) plus my neighbors, mostly college students with clusters of elderly. As my sometimes awe, sometimes irritation, at both the weather and my neighbors, becomes clearer to me, and thus less of an awareness shock, my own tendency to blend my other impulses, of cynicism and humor, begins to assert itself.

*** I hope youll enjoy this third installment of my morning series, and also visit my Amazon Authors Page for the complete listing of all my poetry and photopoem work. Thank you much, sincerely,
