

GOOD MORNING, DELICIOUS (Haven Crest Series Book 5)

LAURA FIELDING, class valedictorian, attends a beach party graduation night, drinks two beers and has sex for the first and only time which results in the birth of her daughter, Polly. Laura never sees or hears from Pollys father again. Lauras supportive parents allow her to live at home, raise her child and do her college work online. More than seven years later, armed with a Masters Degree in finance, Laura is offered a position five hours from home with a large company in Philadelphia, the Lincoln Group. She and Polly move to a rented house in Haven Crest to begin her new job. The evening she and Polly move into their house, CHAZ LINCOLN, the CEO, calls her and begs her to drop everything because hes just been told theres an IRS audit being done the following Monday. When he arrives at her door, Laura is struck by his good looks, but since she hasnt been touched by a man since that one night so long ago, she knows shed be no match for him. Polly, however, has different ideas and sees him as the daddy shes been longing for. Chaz is drawn to Polly and Laura. At thirty-one, he knows he wants a family, but hasnt found the one hed want to be with, until them. Laura tells him her story and he questions whether he wants to be the man to teach a grown woman like Laura the intimacies of love, but when she tells him shes ready to start dating and experimenting, hes horrified to think of her in the arms of another man. At first timid, nervous and afraid, Chaz leads her to appreciate the subtlety of love making rather than raw sex. Hes amazed at the sensual woman hes awakened and falls in love with her. He adores Polly and the feeling is mutual. When he asks her to marry him after knowing her for such a short time, she hesitates, but hes who she wants. Will their hasty marriage erupt with problems they hadnt expected and can they make it work? Will Polly suffer from what she sees and hears from them?
