

Halloween Treats: An Anthology

A fun anthology of short stories to trick your imagination and treat your desires! Halloween Switch by Lizzie Steele It isn't all fun and games when Megan drags her reluctant husband to yet another company party at the stuffy law firm where she works. Megan and several of her friends all decide to dress in school uniforms, while their significant others assume the role of their wealthy fathers in their boring tuxedos. An odd message had been carved above the arches, though, which turned out to be so much more than just part of the decorations. At midnight, the paralegals actually become schoolgirls, and Megan soon finds herself over her daddy's knee for a much-needed lesson. Spooked by Courage Knight Dillon was all prepared for Halloween, having decorated his Victorian home with friendly-faced jack-o-lanterns, window clings, and a scarecrow. But no children would ever venture down his long driveway to knock on the door to the house everyone knew was haunted. His wife issued an ultimatum. He could choose to stay, sharing his home with the resident ghosts who refused to leave, or he could come away with her. To ensure she got her way, she'd stopped making the mortgage payments five months before. It was only a matter of time before the bank foreclosed. Then he'd be forced to leave with her. But it wasn't just that she hadn't paid the mortgage. She'd spent it! And to make matters worse, their house really was haunted. Trick or Treat! by Louise Taylor Art teacher Emily has spent all day prepping the Haunted House her school is running as part of their Halloween Fair and she can't wait to show it to Peter, her new boyfriend. Peter is pretty much perfect: he's tall, handsome, respectful, and kind, but there's just one problem—their sex lacks spark. While she debates whether she can cope with a spark-less sex life, Emily drags a reluctant Peter around the Haunted House. The only problem is that Emily has made the Haunted House a little too scary. Now Emily discovers just how strong and dominant her boyfriend can be when he decides to give her a punishment spanking like she's never had before.

A Very Happy Halloween! by Louise Taylor Emma and Jack have just moved to a new town to start their lives together but they have to spend their first Halloween apart as computer coder Jack is sent away on business. Jack is a Halloween fanatic and has decorated their new home so well that all the neighbourhood come trick or treating on Halloween. He just wishes he could be there to hand out all the candy! Emma, however, has a very different idea about what children should be given on Halloween. When Jack returns to find out that Emma has ruined their Halloween reputation, there's only one way to deal with this first domestic argument a good spanking!

A Zombie Halloween by Sebrina Winchester Evie loved Halloween! She invested a lot of time in creating a perfectly scary display in her front yard. Her husband, was less than thrilled. He just didn't get it. And then, one irate grandmother came to their door, complaining. After the woman left, only somewhat appeased, Phillip decided it was time to teach his wife a lesson she was not likely to forget! And maybe next year, she'd think twice before scaring the younger set.

The Vampire Next Door by Sebrina Winchester Wendy pouted when her husband laid down the law. No more scary movies! They always gave her nightmares. And she had such an active imagination. Like the new next door neighbor He never seemed to leave that draconian house he didn't even seem to own a car. And to top it all off, her darling little dog freaked out any time they had to walk past his place. She had to cross the street to walk the dog on the other side! Could he be a vampire? Her husband had had enough of her foolishness. When he caught her snooping in the neighbors windows, it was just too much. She needed a spanking to end all spankings, and maybe then, she'd learn to leave their n
