

Lost No More...A Mothers Spiritual Journey Through Her Sons Addiction

The book is about the death of her 23-year-old son, Chris, who died in 2007 of a drug-related heart attack. It details Burns spiritual growth during his addiction and after his death. Chris Burns was a 2002 Boardman High School graduate and became addicted to OxyContin and other drugs after a car accident left him with chronic pain. Chris Burns is given writing credits in the book because it contains his original writings, artwork, voicemails and text messages to give readers a perspective into his life and struggle.
