

Black Sheep, Black Sheep, God Has Not Forsaken Thee

There are so many people in the world today that are still hurting from past mistakes as a child or because of acts committed against that allowed the person who caused the pain to walk away and later in life cause more pain. There are so many people addicted to drugs and alcohol trying to coat their pain or to help them forget what happened years passed. How does one forget the incest, the molestation, the rape, the neglect, the childhood trauma that has lead one to grow as a adult still trapped by skeletons in the closet, still trapped in darkness of their past that has labeled you and made you to act out in ways and caused you to be different and labeled a black sheep by family members. There are so many different events in families that has caused so much pain and anguish that has lead to a broken family that needs to be addressed mentally so that hey can stop living in the darkness of their youth and come into the marvelous light and forgive so that they can begin to live a blessed life. Stop hating and starting loving again and allow someone to love you because forgiveness is for you and not for them, It is not for the person who has labeled you are treated you wrong it is for you so that you can live and enjoy a peaceful life filled love. Forgiveness is about choosing to let go of whatever and giving your burdens and everything that is causing your life to be stolen ay by day. It is about accepting God and allowing Him to come in and repair the hurt. We live in a imperfect world surrounded by imperfect people. There was only one perfect man and that was Jesus so this tells me that we are going to make mistakes and bad choices but when we are walking with God He will give us what I call little nuggets of love when He corrects us. We should always follow our hearts , we should think with our hearts why we do things. Our motives should be pure. God looks at the heart and man looks at our outer appearance this is why we can never fool God. The heart does not lie. God looks at our heart. He knows why we are hurting. who caused the hurt and how to heal the hurt. You cannot get through it alone. You need God to help you. Family will turn their backs on you but God never will because He loves us unconditionally. He gave His only begotten son as a sacrifice for us . Would you have did the same? God loves you and He wants your pain to end. Try God you have nothing to lose but everything to gain.
